DECLARATION OF
JEANNE C. FINEGAN OF
KROLL NOTICE MEDIA
SOLUTIONS LLC IN CONNECTION WITH
FINAL APPROVAL OF
SETTLEMENT

1 INTRODUCTION

2 1. I am the Managing Director and Head of Kroll Notice Media Solutions
3 (“Kroll Media”),¹ a business unit of Kroll Settlement Administration LLC
4 (“Kroll”), the Settlement Notice Administrator appointed in the above-captioned
5 case.² This declaration (the “Declaration”) is based upon my personal knowledge
6 as well as information provided to me by my associates and staff, including 7 information reasonably relied upon in the fields of advertising media and 8 communications.
10
11

12 2. Kroll was appointed by the Court as the Settlement Notice
13 Administrator to provide notification and administration services in connection
14 with a settlement agreement (the “Settlement Agreement”) entered into in 15 connection with the above-captioned case, referred to herein as the “Settlement”
16 and preliminarily approved by the Court in an Order dated May 19, 2022. Pursuant 17 to the terms of the Settlement Agreement, Kroll’s duties in connection with the 18 Settlement include: (a) printing, mailing or arranging for the mailing of the Direct
19 Mail Notice; (b) handling returned mail not delivered to Class Members; (c)
20 attempting to obtain updated address information for any Direct Mail Notices and 21 all other mail (including returned checks) returned without a forwarding address;
22
24
25
26

27 ¹ Capitalized terms used but not defined herein shall have the meanings ascribed
28 to them in the Settlement Agreement (as defined below).

² The Settlement Agreement appoints Kroll Notice Media as the Settlement Notice Administrator. Kroll Notice Media is a business unit of Kroll Settlement Administration LLC.

1 (d) making any additional mailings required under the terms of this Settlement
2 Agreement; (e) responding to requests for Long Form Notice; (f) receiving and 3 maintaining on behalf of the Court any Class Member correspondence regarding 4 requests for exclusion and/or objections to the Settlement Agreement; (g)
5 forwarding written inquiries to Class Counsel or their designee for a response, if 6 warranted; (h) establishing a post-office box for the receipt of any correspondence;
7 (i) responding to requests from Class Counsel and/or Toyota's Counsel; (j)
8 establishing a website and a staffed toll-free telephone number with after-hours
9 voice response unit with message capabilities to which Class Members may refer
10 for information about the Action and the Settlement Agreement; (k) otherwise 11 implementing and/or assisting with the dissemination of the notice of the 12 Settlement Agreement; (l) receiving and processing of Claims, including for 13 deficiencies; and (m) coordinating with the Settlement Claims Administrators
14 regarding Claims, including the forwarding of Claims. The Settlement Notice
15 Administrator shall also be responsible for, without limitation, implementing the 16 terms of the Out-of-Pocket Claims Process and related administrative activities.
17
19 20
21
22

23 3. This Declaration provides a report concerning the successful 24 implementation of the Class Notice, which commenced on July 1, 2022, was 25 substantially completed on July 30, 2022, and was finally completed on September
26 16, 2022. Class Notice included Direct Mail Notice and a robust media notice 27 program which employed a mix of newspaper, magazines, online display, social 28

1 media and press releases (the “Media Notice Program”). The Class Notice
2 (comprising Direct Mail Notice and the Media Notice Program) is estimated to 3 have reached over 98% of Class Members,³ on average 5.7 times, with Direct Mail
4 Notice alone reaching an estimated 94% of Class Members.

7 4. These numbers include a Class Notice program provided in New
8 Hampshire through a combination of Direct Mail Notice, the Media Notice
9 Program, and through a supplemental media notice program (the “New Hampshire
10 Supplemental Media Notice Program”), as more fully discussed below.⁴
12

13
14 ³ In the Settlement Agreement, the Class is defined as: all persons, entities or 15 organizations (a) who own or lease a 2010 to 2015 model year Prius vehicle, and 16 2012 to 2017 model year Prius V vehicle that was the subject of Safety Recall E0E, 17 FOR, J0V, and/or 20TA10 (each a “Subject Vehicle”), as of the entry of the 18 Preliminary Approval Order or (b) who, at any time before the entry of the 19 Preliminary Approval Order, owned or leased a Subject Vehicle. Excluded from 20 the Class are: (a) Toyota, its officers, directors and employees; its affiliates and 21 affiliates’ officers, directors and employees; its distributors and distributors’
22 officers, directors and employees; and Toyota Dealers and Toyota Dealers’ officers
23 and directors; (b) Plaintiffs’ Counsel; (c) judicial officers and their immediate 24 family members and associated court staff assigned to this case; and (d) persons or 25 entities who or which timely and properly exclude themselves from the Class as 26 provided in the Settlement Agreement.

27 ⁴ Due to restrictions of the New Hampshire Driver Privacy Act, RSA 260:14, III, 28 Kroll’s ability to obtain Class Member records for that state was delayed. In anticipation that the records would not be made available to Kroll by the September 16, 2022 date set forth in the Court’s May 19, 2022 scheduling order, and in order to provide sufficient targeted notice to Class Members in that state, in addition to the nationwide Media Notice Plan that inherently included notice to residents of the State of New Hampshire, the Parties approved and Kroll provided a supplemental notice plan specifically geotargeted to subject vehicle owners in the state of New Hampshire, as discussed in paragraph Nos. 34-37 below. Ultimately, Kroll did timely receive the New Hampshire Class Member data and provided Direct Mail Notice to such Class Members on or about September 16, 2022.

1 5. This declaration also describes the claims process, timely opt-outs
2 received, and timely objections received. The Parties' counsel and the Special
3 Settlement Master have been provided regular updates by Kroll on the relevant
4 ongoing notice and claims process. The Parties' counsel and the Special 5 Settlement Master have provided their input to Kroll throughout the process.

8 NOTICE PROGRAM ELEMENTS

9 6. The Class Notice included the following components:
10

- 11 • Direct Mail Notice of postcards by first-class postage prepaid
12 U.S.⁵ mail to reasonably identifiable Class Members in the United 13 States and District of Columbia;
- 14 • Publication Notice in two general circulation magazines,
15 published in English with Spanish sub-headlines;
- 16 • Publication Notice in USA Today, Los Angeles edition;
- 17 • Publication Notice in nine (9) territorial newspapers along with 18 banner advertising on the newspapers' web property;
- 19 • A press release in English and Spanish distributed in the U.S. and 20 U.S. territories;
- 21 • A press release in English and Spanish distributed in the U.S. and
22 U.S. territories;

23 ⁵ Kroll was informed by R.L. Polk & Company that it does not provide vehicle
24 registration mailing data for residents of the U.S. territories. Further, Kroll was 25 informed by Toyota that it does not hold owner address records for vehicles in the 26 territories. As a result, notice in the territories was accomplished through 27 publication, digital display ads, and social media. This is consistent with the 28 approach used in other similar court-approved automotive settlements administered by Kroll and other administrators, including, Simerlein et. al. v.
Toyota Motor Corporation, et al., Case No. 3:17-cv-01091-VAB (D. Conn.), and Warner v. Toyota Motor Sales, U.S.A., Inc., Case No. 2:15-cv-02171-FMO-FFM
(C.D. Cal.).

- 1 • Social media advertising in the United States and U.S. territories
- 2 through Facebook, Instagram and Twitter in English and Spanish;
- 3
- 4 • Online display banner advertising specifically targeted to reach
- 5 Class Members in the United States and U.S. territories in English
- 6 and Spanish, including but not limited to utilizing popular Prius
- 7 forums, where possible to do so;
- 8
- 9 • Online display banner advertising supplemental notice in New
- 10 Hampshire;
- 11 • An informational website:
- 12 www.toyotapriusinvertersettlement.com that contains important
- 13 deadlines and other settlement-related information; important
- 14 documents, including, but not limited to, the Long Form Notices
- 15 (in English and Spanish) and relevant legal memoranda (including
- 16 the motion for preliminary approval and Plaintiffs' fee petition);
- 17 settlement updates; a vehicle information number ("VIN") lookup
- 18 function to determine whether a vehicle is a Subject Vehicle; an
- 19 online opt-out option (which was deactivated when the time within
- 20 which to opt out had passed); an electronic claim filing option
- 21 (with the ability to cure deficiencies online as well); and the ability
- 22 to communicate with Kroll online;
- 23
- 24 • A toll-free information line for Class Members; and
- 25
- 26 • CAFA Notice to appropriate state and federal government
- 27 officials.
- 28

1 CAFA NOTICE

2 7. On December 10, 2021, Kroll provided notice of the proposed
3 Settlement under CAFA, 28 U.S.C. §1715(b), to appropriate state and federal 4 government officials. Attached as Exhibit 1 is a copy of the CAFA letter and a list
5 of the government officials that received notice. The documents referenced in the 6 CAFA notice letter have been removed for the Court's convenience, but are 7 available on request. Kroll has not received any correspondence relating to this
8 Settlement from any of the state attorneys general.

9 DIRECT MAIL NOTICE

10 8. As mentioned previously, on December 10, 2021, Kroll provided
11 notice of the proposed Settlement under CAFA, 28 U.S.C. §1715(b) by first-class
12 U.S. mail, to appropriate state and federal government officials.

13 9. On May 9, 2022, Kroll received electronic data files from Toyota with 14 Vehicle Identification Numbers (VINs) for the Subject Vehicles. These files
15 contained a total of 56,213 records for Subject Vehicles that Toyota's records
16 indicated had the Intelligent Power Module ("IPM") or inverter replaced, and 17 1,015,748 records for Subject Vehicles for which Toyota had no record of IPM or 18 inverter replacement. Kroll used these files to create the master database of Subject
19 Vehicles and combined Class Members who owned additional vehicles to one 20 record.
21
22
23
24
25
26
27
28

1 10. Kroll sent a list of the VINs to S&P Global Automotive (“Polk”).
3 From June 6, 2022, to September 9, 2022, Polk provided Kroll with various lists
4 of all of the current and former owners or lessees of the Subject Vehicles, based on 5 state Department of Motor Vehicle records.

7 11. Beginning on July 25, 2022, Kroll commenced mailing Direct Mail
8 Notice to the Class by U.S. First Class postage prepaid mail using the lists
9 identified above that were received from Polk. A true and correct copy of the front
10 and back of the Direct Mail Notice for Class Members who, according to Toyota’s
11 records, had an IPM or inverter replaced in a Subject Vehicle and are, therefore,
12 automatically entitled to receive a Redistribution Check in the event such checks 13 are issued is attached as Exhibit 2. A true and correct copy of the front and back of 14 the Direct Mail Notice for the remaining Class Members is attached as Exhibit 3.
15

17
18 12. A duplicate analysis was performed which consisted of merging into 19 one record VINs for Class Members who owned multiple in class vehicles and 20 creating records for vehicles who had more than one owner. After this process
21 Kroll employed a rolling mailing process to send Direct Mail Notice to 1,779,140
22 Class Members between the dates of July 25, 2022, and July 29, 2022. Additionally, 23 upon receiving the New Hampshire data, on September 16, 2022, Kroll mailed an 24 additional 9,580 notices to the New Hampshire Class Members. In total, Kroll
25 mailed 1,788,720 Direct Mail Notices, excluding re-mailed Direct Mail Notices
26 and forwarded Direct Mail Notices. This mailing consisted of 54,527 notices to 27
28

1 Class Members for whom Toyota has records of IPM or inverter replacement in a 2 Subject Vehicle and 1,734,193 notices to the remaining Class Members.

4 13. As of November 3, 2022, Kroll had identified 105,154 Direct Mail
5 Notices that were returned by the United States Postal Service (“USPS”) as 6 undeliverable as addressed. Of these, the USPS provided updated addresses for 7 13,867 records. These Class Members’ addresses were updated in Kroll’s master
8 database and Direct Mail Notices were promptly re-mailed by Kroll to the 9 forwarding addresses.
10
11

12 14. For the remaining 105,217 Direct Mail Notices that were returned by 13 the USPS as undeliverable without a forwarding address, Kroll conducted advanced 14 address searches to attempt to locate new addresses for these Class Members. Kroll
15 was successful in locating 92,497 new address and promptly re-mailed the Direct 16 Mail Notice to the Class Members at such addresses. As of November 15, 2022, 17 1,612 of the re-mailed notices were returned by the USPS as undeliverable without 18 a forwarding address.
19
20
21

22 OVERVIEW OF MEDIA NOTICE PROGRAM

23 15. In addition to Direct Mail Notice, the Class Notice included a Media
24 Notice Program that provided notice through a mix of newspaper, magazines, 25 online display, social media and press releases, to target Class Members in the 26 United States and the United States Territories of American Samoa, Guam, the 27
28

1 Northern Mariana Islands, Puerto Rico, and the U.S. Virgin Islands and online
2 supplemental notice in the state of New Hampshire.

4 UNITED STATES AND TERRITORIES MEDIA NOTICE PROGRAM

5 16. The Publication Notice was published once (1x) in the following
6 generally circulated magazines:

Publication	Circulation	Language	Distribution	Publication Date
People Magazine	3,502,833	English	United States and Territories	July 18, 2022
Time Magazine	1,617,447	English	United States and Territories	July 25, 2022

10
11
12
13 Combined, these magazines have a total circulation of over 5,120,000
14 with over 44,097,000 readers.⁶

15
16 17. Attached as Exhibit 4 are copies of the Publication Notice
17 advertisements as they appeared in these publications.

18
19 18. These magazines were selected by Kroll for use in the Media Notice
20 Program based on media research data provided by Simmons-MRI regarding the 21 publications' reach or index against this target audience. Nearly 11% of Prius
22 owners read People Magazine and Prius owners are 44% more likely to read Time
23 Magazine than the average adult. Both magazines have distribution in the United 24 States and United States Territories.
25
26
27
28

⁶ Readers are calculated using a pass-along factor of readers in addition to the subscriber who reads the magazine.

1 19. The Publication Notice was also published four times in USA Today,
2 Los Angeles edition on:

Publication	Circulation	Language	Distribution	Publication Dates
USA Today, Los Angeles	9,423	English	United States	July 5, 12, 19, 26, 2022

8 20. Attached as Exhibit 5 is a copy of the Publication Notice advertisement
9 as it appeared in this publication.

10 21. Digital media, which includes online display banner ads, ran in English
11 and Spanish. Online ads targeted people in the United States, U.S. Territories, and 12 the State of New Hampshire who have been identified as Prius owners. The online
13 display ads appeared across desktop, laptop, tablet, and mobile devices.
15

16 22. Digital ads were served to this target audience through a programmatic, 17 computerized approach to buying ads online. “Programmatic” involves the use of 18 an algorithm to show a specific ad to a specific visitor in a specific context, i.e., on 19 a particular website that a class member is visiting or likely to visit. Digital ads
20 were served across thousands of websites including, among numerous others,
21 cbsnews.com, foxbusiness.com, newsweek.com, nbcnews.com,
22 Washingtonpost.com, instyle.com, laopinion.com, and eatingwell.com. Digital ads
23 also appeared on Prius forums including priuschat.com, toyotanation.com, and 24 toyotaownersclub.com.
25
26
27
28

1 23. At the outset of the Class Notice, Kroll’s original impression
2 projection was estimated to be over 21,000,000.⁷ Due to Kroll’s optimizations
3 combined with the New Hampshire Supplemental Media Notice Program (as more 4 fully discussed below), the Class Notice exceeded Kroll’s projections, ultimately 5 serving over 42,000,000 combined digital and social impressions in the United 6 States and U.S. Territories, and an additional 22,000,000 combined digital and 7 social impressions geotargeted in New Hampshire.

8 24. Attached as Exhibit 6 are copies of the banner ads as they appeared 9 online.

10
11
12
13 SOCIAL MEDIA ADS - UNITED STATES AND TERRITORIES

14 25. Social media ads on Facebook and Instagram appeared in prominent 15 locations on the social platforms Newsfeeds⁸ sections. Social media ads targeted 16 those who have “liked” or “follow” Toyota, Toyota Prius V Owners and Clubs and 17 various other Prius clubs and pages across Facebook and Instagram.

18 26. On Twitter, the ads also appeared in the user’s feed, and the ads
19 targeted those who follow or interacted with handles such as @Toyota, 20 @ToyotaMotorCorp and others. Social media ads ran in both the United States and 21 United States Territories.

23
24
25
26
27
28 ⁷ An impression is a metric used to quantify the number of digital views or engagements of an ad. It is also referred to as an opportunity to see an ad.

⁸ Newsfeeds are where Facebook and Instagram users look for information about friends, family, news, and brand information.

1 27. Attached as Exhibit 7 are copies of the social media ads as they
2 appeared online.

4 RETARGETING

5 28. Online and social ads retargeted (i.e., provided reminder ads) those 6 who visited the settlement website. Retargeting tags online users by including a 7 pixel within the target webpage which sets a cookie in the user’s browser. Once the 8 cookie is set, the campaign ads were displayed to that user anywhere that user may 9 visit.
10
11

12 TERRITORIAL OUTREACH – NEWSPAPERS

13 29. The Publication Notice was published once (1x) in the following U.S.

3 on the newspaper’s web properties.

5 31. Attached as Exhibit 8 are copies of the notice as they appeared in print
6 or online.

8 PRESS RELEASE IN THE UNITED STATES AND UNITED STATES
9 TERRITORIES

10 32. On July 1, 2022, Kroll issued a press release over PR Newswire’s
11 U.S.1, Guam, Puerto Rico, U.S. Virgin Island and Pacific Islands Newlines. The 12 press release resulted in 570 news mentions of the Settlement.
13

14 33. Attached as Exhibit 9 is a full report on the press release.
15

16 NEW HAMPSHIRE SUPPLEMENTAL MEDIA NOTICE PROGRAM

17 34. The New Hampshire Supplemental Media Notice Program
18 geotargeted online display ads, to all New Hampshire residents over the age of 18
19 (which includes Prius owners).
20

21 35. Social media ads geotargeted Class Members in New Hampshire for 22 their social media journey across user’s newsfeeds, stories and videos. Social ads
23 targeted those who “liked” or “follow” Toyota, Toyota Prius V Owners and Clubs
24 and various other Prius clubs and pages across Facebook and Instagram.
25
26

27
28 ⁹ Readers are calculated using a pass-along factor of 2.3 readers in addition to the subscriber who read the newspaper. See National Newspaper Association, naweb.org.

1 36. On Twitter, the geotargeted campaign ads focused on those who
2 follow or interact with handles such as @Toyota, @ToyotaMotorCorp and others.

4 37. In total, more than 22,000,000 online and social media ads were 5 served to all New Hampshire residents over the age of 18 (which includes Prius
6 owners).

8 OFFICIAL SETTLEMENT WEBSITE

9 38. In accordance with the terms of the Settlement Agreement, Kroll
10 established a settlement website at www.toyotapriusinvertersettlement.com, which 11 went partially live to the public on July 1, 2022, and fully live (with online filing
12 capabilities) on July 7, 2022. Each Class Member who was sent a Direct Mail 13 Notice received a unique identifier (a “Class Member ID”) which enables them to,
14 inter alia, easily file an online claim (e.g., certain fields, such as First Name, Last 15 Name, and Address, are populated automatically when the identifier is used). Class
16 Members who do not have a Class Member ID can also file a claim online using 17 the “No I Do Not Have a Class Member ID” option. All visitors to the settlement
18 website can obtain additional information about the Settlement (including 19 downloading Court documents related to the case, such as the Settlement
20 Agreement, the preliminary approval motion, the Court’s May 19, 2022 order
21 granting preliminary approval, the Long Form Notice (in English and Spanish),
22 Plaintiff’s Motion for Approval of Fees, Expenses, and Incentive Awards, and so
23 on); read the list of Frequently Asked Questions; communicate with Kroll’s
25
26
27
28

1 Customer Support Representatives; and Toyota vehicle owners can look up their 2 vehicle's VIN to determine if it is a Subject Vehicle and, therefore, included in the 3 Settlement.

5 39. Through October 26, 2022, the settlement website also enabled Class
6 Members to electronically opt-out of the settlement if they wished to do so, by 7 filling out a simple online form.

9 40. In addition to enabling Class Members the opportunity to easily
10 submit claims and all supporting documentation electronically, the settlement 11 website also allows them to electronically cure any deficiencies that may exist with 12 respect to those claims.¹⁰ The settlement website also served as a "landing page 13 for the banner advertising," such that if someone viewing a banner ad clicked on 14 the ad, they would be redirected to the settlement website. The settlement website 15 is accessible 24 hours a day, 7 days a week, and will continue to be active for the 16 duration of the Customer Confidence Program. To ensure the settlement website 17 remains active and responsive to search queries throughout the duration of the 18 Customer Confidence Program, it shall be subject to search-engine optimization.
19 As of November 18, 2022, over 72,272 users have visited the settlement website.
20
21
22
23
24
25
26
27

28 ¹⁰ The parties requested that Kroll add this new feature, to ensure that the process of curing a deficient claim is as efficient as is the process of submitting a claim in the first instance.

1 TOLL FREE INFORMATION LINE

2 41. On June 30, 2022, Kroll established and continues to maintain a 24-
3 hour toll-free telephone line where callers may obtain information about the class
4 action Settlement. Kroll provides both automated, Interactive Voice Response
5 (“IVR”) and agent answered call center services. Live operators are available
6 Monday through Friday, from 5:00 am to 5:00 pm, PST and are trained to respond
7 to questions about the settlement, answer questions about the status of submitted 8 claims, claim payment, how to submit a claim, and other material aspects of the 9 Settlement. The phone number is also configured to enable callers to leave a 10 message after hours, which are returned by Kroll the next business day. As of 11 November 18, 2022, 6,607 individuals have called the IVR. Of these callers 2,837
12 requested to speak with a live operator.
13
14
15
16
17

18 CLAIMS

19 42. As of November 9, 2022, Kroll has received 31 Claim Forms through 20 the mail and 2,303 Claim Forms filed electronically through the settlement website.
21 In response to the Order to Show Cause issued by the Court on November 2, 2022,
22 the online Claim Form was revised to include the Kroll address as the return
23 address, in bold, on the Claim Form at pages 3, 4, and 6. The updated paper Claim 24 Form will also state, in bold and italics on pages 3, 4, and 6, “do not mail your 25 claim form to the Court.” A copy of the paper version of the Claim Form was also 26
27
28

1 added to the “Documents” section of the settlement website, to enable individuals
2 to download a paper Claim Form without the need to contact Kroll.

4 43. Kroll has been working on the receipt and review of the Claim Forms
5 in coordination with the Court-appointed Settlement Claims Administrator. Per 6 the terms of the settlement agreement, Kroll receives the Claims, whether 7 submitted electronically via the settlement website or by U.S. Mail and performs
8 an initial review to determine whether a Claim meets certain threshold
9 requirements for processing (e.g., whether it was submitted prior to the applicable
10 deadline; is for a Class Vehicle; includes supporting documentation and/or is 11 signed). For electronic claims submissions via the settlement website, the Claim 12 Form was designed to make certain fields required in order to submit a Claim. For 13 Claim Forms received via U.S. Mail, the Claim Form is scanned into Kroll’s
14 proprietary system and information provided by the filer is recorded. The Claim
15 Form is also uploaded to a Claims review portal, to which the Settlement Notice
16 Administrator has full access. The Settlement Claims Administrator receives an 17 email notification that there are new Claims pending their approval assessment, 18 with a link to the platform to review the Claims and supporting documentation. In 19 addition, the Claims review portal allows the Settlement Claims Administrator to 20 enter determinations based on its review that will initiate the appropriate notice
21 based on the type of deficiency (if any) at issue. The deadline to submit a Claim is

1 no earlier than May 12, 2023. Kroll expects additional timely-filed Claim Forms
2 to arrive through the duration of the Claim Period.

4 EXCLUSIONS

5 44. As of November 9, 2022, Kroll has received 116 timely opt-out
6 requests, 100 of which were submitted electronically, through the settlement
7 website. A list of the exclusions is attached hereto as Exhibit 10. That list has 8 been redacted for privacy reasons. As of November 9, one untimely opt-out
9 request was received via the mail. Kroll will make unredacted copies of the opt-
10 out requests available to the Court upon request.
12

13 OBJECTIONS

14 45. As of November 9, 2022, Kroll has received 2 objections to the 15 Settlement. The objections have been redacted for privacy and are attached hereto
16 as Exhibit 11. Kroll will make unredacted copies of the objections available to the 17 Court upon request. One objector (Class Member Aline) was sent a Direct Mail
18 Notice on or about August 8, 2022, advising her that she is automatically eligible
19 to receive a Redistribution Check (in the event they are issued) because she was 20 identified, by Toyota, as a person who had an IPM in a Subject Vehicle replaced
21 under warranty.

26 CONCLUSION

27 46. In my opinion, the Class Notice, and in particular the Media Notice
28 Program, reflects a particularly appropriate, highly targeted, and contemporary

1 way to provided notice to Class Members. In my opinion, the efforts used in this
2 Class Notice are of the highest modern communication standards and are 3 reasonably calculated to provide notice, reaching — through a combination of 4 Direct Mail Notice and the Media Notice Program an estimated 98% of Class
5 Members, on average 5.7 times. This Class Notice is therefore consistent with best 6 practicable court-approved notice programs in similar matters and the Federal
7 Judicial Center’s guidelines concerning appropriate reach.

There is a proposed class action settlement alleging certain Toyota Prius and Prius V vehicles contained defective inverters. Toyota denies the allegations. The Court has not ruled on these claims. This notice is to inform you about the settlement and summarize your options.

You have been identified by Toyota as a person who has had an IPM or Inverter in a Subject Vehicle repaired or replaced.

Who Is Included?

You are a Class Member for settlement purposes only and may be eligible for benefits if you:

- Currently own or lease a 2010-2015 Prius or 2012-2017 Prius V vehicle that was the subject of Safety Recalls E0E, F0R, J0V, and/or 20TA10 (“Subject Vehicle”), as of May 19, 2022; or
- Owned or leased a Subject Vehicle any time before May 19, 2022.

What Does the Settlement Provide?

- Customer Confidence Program: A 20-year/unlimited-mileage warranty enhancement, providing cost-free repair or replacement of the IPM or Inverter, starting from your Prius or Prius V’s first day in service and an appeal process for any program denials. For important details re benefits and appeal rights/deadlines See FAQ #10 at the settlement website and QR code.
- Cost-free loaner and/or towing. Available if certain conditions are present with any appeal process for denials. See FAQ #11 and QR Code for details about benefits and appeal rights/ deadlines.
- Reimbursement: An initial $20,000,000 replenishable settlement fund to pay for reimbursement of unreimbursed IPM and Inverter repairs and replacements and/or related towing and rental car expenses incurred before expected Final Effective Date of February 12, 2023. For details see FAQ #12. To be reimbursed, you must file a timely claim.
- Possible Redistribution Check: If there is money left in the initial settlement fund after eligible out-of-pocket reimbursement claims are paid, you may get a check (“Redistribution Check”). Because you may have been identified as a person who has had an IPM or Inverter in a Subject Vehicle replaced, you are automatically registered to receive a Redistribution Check, if available. See FAQ #13.

- Possible charitable, cy pres payments. If the Settlement Fund still has a balance after Redistribution Checks are sent, it will go to Texas A&M University Transportation Institute. See FAQ #14.

What are Your Options?

- Do Nothing. You will be legally bound by decisions of the Court and you will give up any rights to sue for the claims in this case.
- Opt-Out. If you do not want to be legally bound by the Settlement, you must exclude yourself by October 26, 2022.
- Object to the Settlement. You may submit an objection and explain why you do not like the settlement by October 26, 2022. You cannot both opt-out and object to the settlement. See FAQ #21 for important requirements.
- File a Claim for Reimbursement: Although you are registered for a potential Redistribution Check, you must still submit a Registration and Reimbursement Claim Form to be reimbursed for any eligible out-of-pocket expenses. Submission deadline is May 12, 2023.

The Court will hold a hearing on January 23, 2023 to hear any objections, determine if the Settlement is fair, and consider the Settlement Special Master’s recommendation that Class Counsel be awarded $19.6 million for fees and expenses and a $5,000 Service Award for each Class Representative. For details review FAQ #23. If you wish to appear at the hearing, see FAQs #24-25 for important requirements.

MUSIC

Beyoncé and Drake find salvation on the dance floor

BY MAURA JOHNSTON

IN MID-JUNE, HIP-HOP MOGUL DRAKE HAD A surprise: his seventh studio album, Honestly, Nevermind, would drop the next day. Those who hit “play” were in for another revelation: Drake, normally a bellwether for incoming pop-music trends thanks to his ravenous appetite for the next big thing, was singing about his heartbreaks and haters over the syncopated rhythms and heavy beats of house music.

Fast-forward a weekend and Beyoncé, a similar signpost for what’s coming in pop, released the first single from Renaissance, her seventh album. “Break My Soul” is fueled by insistent synths and the feeling that the world is closing in, with Beyoncé “lookin’ for a new foundation/ And I’m on that new vibration.”

Two of pop’s most important artists shifting in similar musical directions might be one shy of an officially observable trend, but it is noteworthy. House music has been a force in pop since its ascent from underground clubs in the ’80s, but the genre has, in recent years, waned slightly in influence. Even at its most upbeat, the storming beats and fragmented instrumentation of house recall low-lit, sweaty clubs where people are in close proximity to one another—the perfect place in a near apocalypse to, as Beyoncé wails on “Break My Soul,” go “looking for something that lives inside me.”

House music was initially a reaction to the ornate instrumentation and pop appeal of disco; in its earliest forms, it was machinelike at its core, with lengthy tracks underpinned by the steady rhythms known as “four on the floor” that would have never survived a radio edit. DJs like the Chicago club master Frankie Knuckles made house remixes of songs on the fly, mixing and editing selections from his own varied record collection over the beats.

As house music grew more popular, it moved from Black, queer spaces to whiter, straighter ones, and in the ’80s and ’90s, it enjoyed some major moments on the pop charts. Robin S’s “Show Me Love,” which is sampled on “Break My Soul,” peaked at No. 5 on the Hot 100 in 1993; other ’90s tracks like Black Box’s groove-forward “Everybody Everybody” and Crystal Waters’ thumping “100% Pure Love” jumped from dance floors to the top 40. Pop superstars dabbled in house too: Whitney Houston’s triumphant cover of Chaka Khan’s “I’m Every Woman,”

Dance music has always been an essential part of pop

as well as Madonna’s slinky “Deeper and Deeper” and Janet Jackson’s bouncy “Together Again,” showed that they were keenly aware of the sounds coming from the club.

Dance music has always been an essential part of pop since the days of the Twist and the Stroll. House itself has spawned a slew of substyles since its breakthrough, including variants rooted in specific places. A few years ago, tropical house—a descendant marked by sun-dappled synths and more lightweight beats—burst out of the EDM festivals of the mid-2010s, with artists like the Norwegian DJ Kygo achieving hits through teamwork with pop artists like Selena Gomez.

IT MIGHT BE too soon to declare that all of pop will be taken over by house’s harder-hitting beats. But these songs, as well as recent efforts by pop futurist Charli XCX and superstar DJ David Guetta, show that the pop-music landscape of 2022 definitely feels more ready to move than in previous years—chalk it up to pandemic-era fatigue. Beyoncé’s comeback song isn’t necessarily a harbinger for how Renaissance will sound—six years ago the bare-bones bounce-trap cut “Formation” didn’t necessarily reflect the wide sonic palette of Lemonade. But the lyrics of “Break My Soul,” which include the complaint “damn, they work me so damn hard,” continue a trend of pairing club-ready beats with lyrics that speak to wider existential despair.

Take Bad Bunny’s latest album, Un Verano Sin Ti, which fuses sounds from all over the world, particularly his home region of the Caribbean, while questioning power structures and their abuses. Or “About Damn Time,” the lead single from Lizzo’s forthcoming album Special; it’s a fizzy, skating-rink-ready rebuke to the blues, with the singer-rapper-flutist trying to beat her depression with pump-herself-up mantras (“I’m way too fine to be this stressed”). Some of the catchiest pop songs have hidden messages of despair and longing in their candy-coated structures, from the Beatles’ “Eleanor Rigby” to Outkast’s “Hey Ya!,” but the contrast does seem more heightened with the current crop of club-ready hits.

It could be due to the way in which pop stars can be, well, stars these days. Shifts in the ways music is promoted and disseminated mean they don’t need the support of radio stations in order to be massive. As a result, they can speak, and sing, more freely—and thanks to the charts’ taking streaming numbers into greater consideration, listeners’ responses are noticed more directly. Bad Bunny’s availability on streaming services has made his appeal, fueled by his overwhelming charm, and his honesty about his personal and political stances, plain to chart watchers: Un Verano Sin Ti and its predecessor, 2020’s El Último Tour Del Mundo, have both hit No. 1 on the Billboard 200. He’s also headlining stadiums this summer.

Beyoncé’s recent career makes this point in a slightly different way. Despite being considered one of the world’s biggest pop stars for pretty much all of the 21st century, she’s had only two Hot 100–topping songs since her dominant ’00s run—2017’s “Perfect Duet,” with Ed Sheeran, and 2020’s “Savage Remix,” with Megan Thee Stallion. (As of this writing, “Break My Soul” has peaked at No. 7.) Yet she can still make the earth move with an imminent album; Lemonade was bought and streamed by enough consumers to make it the fourth biggest album of 2016.

With the pop landscape continuing to be unpredictable thanks to the hitmaking ability of TikTok and the power of a good TV sync—who had Kate Bush’s “Running Up That Hill” in their 2022 song-of-the-summer pool?—Drake and Beyoncé’s return to the clubs provides an unexpected tonic for listeners looking to dance out their dread. Separately yet somehow together, the two used their considerable pop power to shine a light on one of modern pop’s foundational genres, luring audiences to its powerful, body-shaking rhythms. □

TRAVEL

Summer travel drives long TSA lines

Ponder arriving earlier as tourists return in droves

Kathleen Wong
USA TODAY

HONOLULU – The Kahului Airport is Maui's main flight hub and the second busiest airport in Hawaii, currently operating with only one TSA checkpoint for all passengers. This past weekend – a normal, nonholiday weekend – those who found themselves ready to depart from Maui waited up to 84 minutes in a long TSA line in the afternoon sun.

On Sunday around 1 p.m., the TSA line wrap past the stanchions and out onto the noncovered sidewalk at the Kahului airport. People without TSA Pre-Check held up their backpacks to shield themselves from the hot sun. There was a lot of sweat.

The airport took notice.

"We were passing out cups of water to the passengers on the curb," Airport District Manager Marvin Moniz told USA TODAY. That weekend, the extra long wait time was likely caused by one of the screening lanes being down on Saturday, he said. The airport has since purchased a canopy to shade people as they wait in line.

But travelers shouldn't be surprised – summer travel is in high demand as many Americans are set on going somewhere, no matter what.

The number of people going through TSA checkpoints is quickly returning to pre-pandemic numbers. On July 21, 2.4 million people went through TSA, compared to 2.1 million last year – in 2019, it was 2.7 million.

Here's what you need to know about TSA lines if you're flying this summer.

How long are TSA lines right now?

The Transportation Security Administration assures that without TSA precheck, wait times haven't been "a big problem," considering summer travel woes, like staffing shortages. But those who were at Kahului Airport this past weekend without TSA PreCheck may argue otherwise.

The average TSA wait time across the nation is at least 30 minutes, said Robert Langston, a TSA spokesperson told USA TODAY. With PreCheck, it can be about 10 minutes.

TSA wait times also vary depending on what day and time your flight is. On Maui, Moniz said the "peak period of the day is typically from 11 a.m. to 2:30 p.m. because there are a few more flights that were inserted into that timeframe." Saturdays and Sundays are even busier, with additional flights on the schedule, so keep that in mind.

"A good portion is summer travel, and a good part of it is the increased summer flight schedule by the airlines," Moniz said of the high volume of passengers.

Some have called airlines "over ambitious" for their packed summer flight schedules, and airlines are now cutting down flights, some as much as 10%.

"We monitor wait times at every airport and work with our airport and airline partners to anticipate higher traffic patterns," said Langdon. He said TSA has a National Deployment Force of 1,000 employees from less busy airports who "volunteer" at the airports in need.

This summer, TSA is also dispatching "advance checkpoint technology" that's more effective in terms of security screening but may temporarily cause longer wait times as it's installed.

How can I check the wait time at my airport?

You can easily check if the TSA line are long via the MyTSA mobile app, which shows estimated wait times in real-time for airports across the nation.

There's also a "Plan For Your Trip" feature that lets you input your upcoming flight's day and time information to see standard wait times pulled from TSA data. This way, you can arrange your airport transport accordingly.

A quick search shows that on Saturdays at around 1 p.m. at Kahului Airport, the standard wait time is "typically greater than 60 minutes."

How early should I get to the airport before my flight?

Most say to arrive at the airport two to three hours before your flight, give or take a bit of time for factors like if you're familiar with the airport, it's an international flight (aka, add more time), or you're checking in baggage. Your airline's website should offer some recommendations concerning check-in time and such.

For popular travel destinations, such as Maui, you may want to add in more time and err on the side of caution. Moniz suggested 2.5 hours typically, and three if your flight is on the weekend.

Like many other Americans who are excited about their summer travel plans, it's better to be safe (and earlier) than sorry and miss your flight.

Knott's Berry Farm to require chaperones after teen brawls

ASSOCIATED PRESS

BUENA PARK, Calif. – Knott's Berry Farm will require young guests to be accompanied by chaperones on Fridays and Saturdays following an outbreak of teen brawls last weekend.

"Millions of guests have counted on us for their daily dose of wholesome family fun, and we're committed to keeping that promise going forward," the Southern California theme park said in a statement on its website.

The policy requires guests who are 17 years old or younger to be accompanied by a chaperone who is at least 21 years old.

The chaperone must have a valid

photo ID with birth date and may accompany no more than three young guests.

The chaperone also must remain with their party at all times.

The policy takes effect at the theme park Friday and also applies to the adjacent Knott's Soak City Waterpark.

The Buena Park Police Department said officers responded to multiple fights that forced the park to shut down early on July 16.

Numerous 911 callers reported shots fired but officers determined there was no shooting, the department said.

Police plan to have an increased presence on Fridays and Saturdays and will be enforcing the municipal curfew.

Are cruises cheaper right now? Here's what to know

Nathan Diller
USA TODAY

Between high travel demand and inflation, taking a trip this summer may be a pricey prospect. But if you are still looking to plan a trip, cruises are a more affordable option – for now.

Stephanie Goldberg-Glazer, owner of the travel agency Live Well, Travel Often, said that while that difference is not necessarily new, this year it is “a little bit more pronounced because hotel prices have gone absolutely insane across the world.”

Cruise line capacity and occupancy rates have been ramping up after the pandemic shut the industry down. But while ships are sailing, Goldberg-Glazer said, “I think that the general public has not come back to cruising quite as quickly.” When compared with next summer, she said, “The cruise prices for this summer are better because I don't think anyone thinks there's going to be a problem filling ships next summer.”

Here is what passengers need to know about those last-minute deals, including when to book and what to do if you already have.

Are cruises cheaper now?

Between July and September, there are 48 sailings available for less than $60 per day including port fees and taxes, according to Cruise Sheet, which aggregates cheap prices.

Travel app Hopper said in its Summer 2022 Travel Guide that hotels would cost travelers an average of $154 per night, meanwhile, and domestic airfare was averaging $383, up 34% compared with the same time in 2019.

But Goldberg-Glazer said there are a lot of components that constitute a good deal. For instance, a cruise that is slightly more expensive than another but includes Wi-Fi and other amenities may be a better deal depending on the passenger.

The Norwegian Pearl cruise ship sails to PortMiami on Jan. 5 in Miami.

MARTA LAVANDIER/AP

“It's really personal, and I think it's actually more than just a numbers game of what the lowest dollar amount is,” she said. “You have to make sure the value is there for the client's particular needs.”

When should I book my next cruise?

For travelers looking to take a cruise this summer, Goldberg-Glazer said, they should book “now.”

“Like, this minute. Right now. As soon as they're reading this article, call their travel adviser and book their summer trip,” she said. Goldberg-Glazer said her agency is already booking cruises through the end of 2023.

She added that in the short term, fares are still very good as travelers have been booking more last minute this summer, but that prices are “creeping up” for the end of 2022 and into next year.

What if I've already booked a cruise?

That depends on the cruise line and their policies, Goldberg-Glazer said.

Celebrity Cruises, for instance, has a Best Price Guarantee, and will match an “available prevailing cruise fare” if a guest requests a lower price on or before the final due date of payment, according to its website.

If the final payment due date has passed and the booking is “within 48 hours from creation,” the line will apply an onboard credit for 110% of the price difference.

If you see a lower fare than what you booked, Goldberg-Glazer said, it's always worth asking the cruise line what your options are.

Generation Z learns to cope, from COVID-19 to inflation

Brandon Griffin
USA TODAY

Forty years ago, inflation scarred many baby boomers in their youth. And the Great Recession in the 2000s left many Gen X and Millennials hesitant to accumulate college debt – or stuck living with relatives.

Now, Generation Z, the nearly 68 million Americans between ages 9 and 24, is experiencing potentially life-altering challenges, including the COVID-19 pandemic and record inflation.

How this generation will fare remains to be seen. If 10,000 of the eldest members of the cohort at the Future Business Leaders of America national business conference in July are any indication, they plan to meet the challenges on their terms.

Here's how.

Gen Z is out for travel revenge

After spending months in quarantine and deprived of social gatherings with peers, Gen Z is determined to travel again. According to Expedia, nearly two-thirds of Gen Z is planning “revenge travel,” and 8 in 10 of the 2,200 survey participants are seeking unique experiences for their next trip.

More than 12,000 Gen Z students and their academic advisers conquered the July Fourth “travel drama” en route to the conference in Chicago. FBLA is among the largest business career and technical student organizations in the world, helping more than 230,000 members prepare for careers in business each year.

“Our student leaders were very vocal about their desire to have an in-person conference this year, after two years of having a virtual conference experience,” Alex Graham, president & CEO of FBLA, told USA TODAY.

Graham said the conference had a $42 million economic impact on Chicago, indicative in part of pent-up demand for travel.

How does Gen Z feel about work?

After seeing the fallout from the recession, widespread job loss, and movements for social justice, members of Gen Z have high professional expectations of their employers, and are likely to change jobs more frequently compared with previous generations.

The average length of time Gen Z spent in a job is about two years, according to a Career Builder survey, and insights from the “Great Resignation” indicate that 20% of millennial and Gen Z job seekers would leave a job within a month if they felt the job wasn't as advertised.

They plan to battle with transferable job skills. Participation in FBLA, for example, helps students develop transferable skills to maintain competitiveness in the workforce.

How does inflation impact Gen Z?

Inflation hit a 40-year high of 9.1% in June, and the hike in interest rates directly impacts Generation Z's ability to afford college.

Christopher Gray, the founder of Scholly, a scholarship app that has helped students win more than $100 million, said there is a direct relationship between the economy and student debt.

“When interest rates are higher, student loan rates are higher, and student debt increases,” said Gray, keynote speaker at the national conference and an FBLA and Shark Tank alum. “Parents have higher mortgages, credit card payments, and scholarships help relieve the burden from parents and the students.”

Nearly 70% of FBLA members say they are first-generation college students. Students who were successful in the competitive business events during the national conference won cash awards, conference scholarships, and other incentives totaling more than $200,000, according to FBLA.

Some students were awarded full-ride scholarships to college partners such as Johnson & Wales University.

Khushi Patel is an incoming freshman at UCLA and a first-place winner of FBLA's Future Business Leader Award.

“I am the second sibling in my family going to college, and it's definitely expensive,” she said. “We are grateful for all the help we can get.”

‘TikTok got me fired’; The pitfalls of talking work on social media

Terry Collins
USA TODAY

A woman in Denver is scheduled to start her new job on Monday, which was actually her old job after recently taking a higher-paying job and then getting fired from it.

Why? For posting TikTok videos about her salary.

Last month, Lexi Larson posted on her TikTok account about how she got a new job in the tech industry that raised her income from $70,000 to $90,000. The video received 168,000 views. For the next two weeks, she posted more videos about how she got that job.

Larson said soon after her employer discovered her TikTok account, she removed some videos fearing her bosses might get angry.

In a later video, Larson said she was fired for her posts.

“So, TikTok got me fired,” said Larson, who goes into detail about knowing that talking about her salary is federally protected by law under the National Labor Relations Act and why she took down some videos.

“... They ended up firing me because they said me having this account was a safety concern because I could post something private,” Larson said.

Larson, who did not respond to USA TODAY's request for comment, didn't name her former employer and also chose not to pursue legal action. But her dismissal raises questions about what you can say or not about your job on social media.

Can an employer prohibit you from discussing your salary?

No, according to the National Labor Relations Act. Employees have the right to communicate with fellow employees and others about their wages. It's also unlawful for employers to punish, retaliate, threaten or put employees under surveillance for having such discussions.

However, the National Labor Relations Board said “when using electronic communications, like social media, keep in mind that your employer may have policies against using their equipment.”

Termination with cause?

It's not known if Larson did use company equipment, but, “the idea that her actions were a firing offense seems pretty harsh,” said Matthew Bergman, a Seattle-based attorney and founder of the Social Media Victims Law Center. “She was only there for two weeks.”

Larson could have a good case if she considers taking legal action, said Bennitta Joseph, a partner at Joseph & Norinsberg LLC in New York.

“She should think about contacting a lawyer if she can show she was terminated for discussing her wages,” said Joseph, who noted that most employees are usually fired for disciplinary or performance reasons.

Can I get fired over TikTok and other social media posts?

Bergman and Joseph say employers will likely monitor employees' social media accounts to ensure employees aren't involved in any unlawful behavior, Joseph said. “A company has a huge interest to make sure you are not engaging in discriminatory statements, disclosing trade secrets, threats of violence, and unlawful conduct,” Joseph said. “If they do find out that you are doing any of these, it could be grounds for termination.”

Bergman said many assume that what people do or say online, especially in regard to finances, is safe. But that's not always the case.

“I think it's important to take a step back and be cautious when revealing personal information on social media,” Bergman said.

“Whether it's an employer looking into your activities, or a potential swindler looking to take you of your money, I think it's a dangerous road,” Bergman added.

He has another piece of advice. “It's probably better to keep your money matters offline,” Bergman concluded.

Kick back and bask in a new crop of rom-coms

From Staff Reports

USA TODAY

The only fireworks more explosive than the ones we set off on the Fourth of July are the emotional fireworks set behind the cover of a simmering summer rom-com.

For this month's roundup, USA TODAY staff read a collection of new rom-coms: books featuring a woman who meets the man of her dreams in her actual dreams, a game of bingo that brings out a heated passion in a pair of friends, and a woman who is into self-help and improvement who realizes what she really wants is not necessarily what she thinks she is supposed to want.

Here are our picks for July's most delightful new rom-com novels:

'Dream On'

By Angie Hockman. ★★★☆.
Out now.

What if you met the man of your dreams ... in your dreams? After waking up from a coma, law grad Cass Walker realizes the "boyfriend" she dreamed about – and even drew detailed sketches of – is a figment of her imagination. But when she meets the man, Devin Bloom, in real life, it seems like she might have a shot at living her dreams. This heartwarming read is full of imagination, both literal and figurative, with plenty of plot twists to keep you guessing. Beyond romance and dreamy men, it's a story of ambition, self-discovery, and listening to what – and who – your heart truly desires. – Hannah Southwick

'Bet on It'

By Jodie Slaughter. ★★★☆.
Out now.

Bingo. Lust. Mental illness. These are not the stuff which rom-coms are made. But in Slaughter's latest, a weekly game of bingo becomes the catalyst for Aja Owens and Walker Abbott to act on the passionate attraction they feel for one another. Slaughter brings great dignity and tenderness to the anxiety and mental health problems that both Aja and Walker endure. However, there are moments when the book has too much exposition that detracts from the romance.

But otherwise, watching Aja and Walker mature, learn to navigate anxious moments and build (or rebuild in Walker's case) new connections with family and friends is a delight. – Mabinty Quarshie

'No Funny Business'

By Amanda Aksel. ★★★☆.
Out now.

Two strangers on a cross-country road trip two wind up in scenarios from the "there is just one bed" trope to a Graceland performance as Elvis and Priscilla to a near-fight at a funeral. Despite the entertaining premise of these shenanigans, I found the book a little flat and never understood or cared much about the characters. While the backstory is doled out in a promising slow drip, there isn't much emotional payoff. That said, the book does include good sarcastic banter, discussions of top comedians and enough food descriptions to make me salivate. – Rebecca Viser

'The Romance Recipe'

By Ruby Barrett. ★★★☆.
Out now.

Simply put, "The Romance Recipe" is a treat. Cooking competition star Sophie Brunet is recently out of a relationship and looking to embrace her newfound bisexual identity. Enter Amy Chambers, Sophie's boss and owner of Amy & May's restaurant. The book follows both Amy's and Sophie's perspectives as they navigate the changing nature of their partnership, from a steamy rendezvous in the kitchen to the eventual breakdown of their individual defenses as they come to learn more about one another. Amy and Sophie's romance is charged from the get-go, with generous helpings of spice and sweetness as the novel progresses. The bisexual representation is one of the book's most compelling elements; Sophie comes out in her early thirties, and through her journey to her relationship with Amy we get to see the overwhelming joy and love that her self-acceptance brings. – Madison Durham

'From the Jump'

By Lacie Waldon. ★★★☆.
Out July 19.

Olivia "Liv" Bakersfield has it all figured out. Or at least, it looks like she does. She's followed all the rules according to the varying empowerment books she reads: She works hard, eats healthy, works out and spends carefully, all in the pursuit of perfection. But when a snap decision leads her on a trip with her tight-knit group of friends to South Africa, she starts to change. She begins to see a different path for her life, including more of saying yes to what she actually wants instead of what she's supposed to want – not to mention who she wants, even if it breaks a pact forged by her nearest and dearest. Waldon's novel is a quick and fun read that's hard to put down. If you thought her debut book "The Layover" was great (as I did), then you're sure to love this one, too. – Morgan Hines

Also new in July

● "Circling Back to You," by Julie Tieu (out now). A work "wife" and work "husband" take their relationship to the next level.

● "The Bodyguard," by Katherine Center (out July 19). Hannah Brooks is tasked with protecting actor Jack Stapleton from a stalker.

● "Knot Again," by Kwana Jackson (out July 26). Fireman Lucas Strong becomes a minor celebrity after posing in the Fire Department of the City of New York charity calendar.

● "Booked on a Feeling," by Jayci Lee (out July 26). Attorney Lizzy has her life mapped out. Will it be derailed by a crush on her childhood best friend?

BOOK REVIEW

Twisty 'Acts of Violet' is a search for a magician as well as our identities

Mary Cadden

USA TODAY

Author Margarita Montimore follows up her 2020 breakout novel "Oona Out of Order" with the equally imaginative and slightly more complicated "Acts of Violet" (Flatiron, 336 pp., ★★★☆, out now). While "Oona" is a deep dive into our own identities, "Violet" is a glimpse into the lives of others.

Legendary yet reclusive illusionist Violet Volk hasn't been seen for 10 years since vanishing mid-act, and the anniversary of her disappearance is upon her small hometown of Willow Glen, New Jersey. Will the famed magician, pop culture darling and self-help author finally reappear and make a triumphant return to her legion of fans and family? The town is filled with a cast of characters invested in her reappearance.

There is Violet's sister Sasha, who has been seen by many as either a victim or villain when it comes to her sister's disappearance, along with her husband Gabe and their daughter Quinn. There is podcaster Cameron Frank, whose podcast Strange Exits delves into Violet's life and disappearance through interviews with her ex-husband, former friends and colleagues – and, he hopes, Sasha.

Montimore focuses on Frank, who wants to get an interview with Sasha and the stories of both Sasha and her sister Violet.

Violet's story is pieced together through podcast episodes, newspaper interviews, magazine articles, emails and the recollections of those she left behind. Sasha's story is told through her experiences and memories in the week leading up to Violet's memorial. Frank is trying to re-create Violet's life while trying to be let into Sasha's.

The chapters alternate among stories, emails and missives about Violet and the podcast, and Sasha's day-to-day. The patchwork way in which the story is told makes for a quick read. Sasha is dead set against appearing on the Strange Exits podcast. Questions about whether Violet will return after all these years appear to get in the way of Sasha and her family finding some kind of closure. And it seems that Sasha's expectations of Violet and the town's expectations of Sasha are diametrically opposed.

The book's depth is revealed by what at first feels like a shallow dive into each woman's life. What the definitive story of an individual is – is hard to say. Is it what we say our story is or is it a culmination of experiences told by others? Or a mixture of both? Should we project our own expectations on others while asking others to not project their own on us?

Montimore's novel is a combination of those questions, which the reader is left to contemplate long after the novel's end.

Happiness report card returns low marks

Survey: About 45% have gone 2 years without it

Terry Collins
USA TODAY

Nearly half of people worldwide are still unhappy more than two years after the start of the COVID-19 pandemic, a new survey says.

According to the Oracle Happiness Report released earlier this month, about 45% of people have not felt true happiness since early 2020.

The software company surveyed more than 12,000 consumers and business leaders from 14 countries for its report, which also found about 25% of people don't know or have forgotten what it means to feel truly happy.

Meanwhile, 88% of those polled are looking for new adventures to make them smile and laugh, with 80% prioritizing health, 79% seeking personal connections and 53% looking for adventures to gain happiness. Additionally, many are turning to brands, companies and online shopping for comfort.

"We're falling short on happiness. We took a big hit around the world," Gretchen Rubin, the bestselling author of The Happiness Project and co-author of the report, told USA TODAY. "We're starving for new experiences to help make us feel better."

Many people worldwide are trying to find what Rubin calls the "next normal," seeking how to move forward while still amid a global pandemic.

The pandemic was "a once-in-a-lifetime event we were simply not prepared for," Rubin says. She said that despite the vaccines, boosters and some immunity from prior infections, most people still aren't feeling happier because the crisis isn't over.

"I don't know about you, but I've heard so many people say, 'Give me a date where I can pace myself and I can get to the finish line,'" Rubin said. "But when we have this constant feeling that we don't know, that sense of uncertainty increases."

And even though we may be venturing out more socially and more big events are taking place, Rubin says, "there's still not just this big huge sigh of relief. It's still a lot we're dealing with."

Global happiness

Measuring the happiness of others is nothing new. The U.N. Sustainable Development Solutions Network publishes a World Happiness Report every year based on data from the Gallup World Poll.

Christopher Barrington-Leigh, a professor at McGill University in Quebec and a researcher involved in the U.N. report, said the findings provide "important snapshots of how people around the world feel about the overall quality of their lives."

The data examines how citizens' trust in government and large institutions plays a major role in a country's level of happiness. For example, Finland was voted the world's happiest country for a fifth straight year. The U.S. ranked 16th.

The U.N. said the level of happiness noted in future reports will be influenced by the state of the pandemic globally, as well as the magnitude of Russia's war in Ukraine. Global economies were already struggling because of the pandemic, and the war has spiked inflation across the U.S. and the world, including eye-popping increases for basics like gas, oil and food.

"The pandemic brought not only pain and suffering but also an increase in social support and benevolence," the report said. "As we battle the ills of disease and war, it is essential to remember the universal desire for happiness and the capacity of individuals to rally to each other's support in times of great need."

Besides measuring overall happiness, Oracle's report revealed that people are seeking smiles and laughs through brands, advertising and consumerism arguably more than ever before. That's a result of the social isolation and loneliness brought on by the pandemic and uncertain times, the report says.

Of those surveyed, 53% wish money could buy happiness, and 78% of them were willing to pay a premium for true joy.

During the pandemic, 89% tried to find happiness in online shopping and 47% said receiving packages made them happy. But 12% of those surveyed said they struggled to remember the purchases they had made online.

Those findings surprised Rob Tarkoff, Oracle's executive vice president for advertising and customer experience, told USA TODAY.

"I found it interesting that as many people admitted their dopamine levels went up when a package arrived at home, I experienced that too," Tarkoff said to USA TODAY, adding that he got to know more about his UPS delivery guy as well. "People wanted to seek connections and online shopping provided a lifeline."

A decade ago Adam Galinsky, a professor of Leadership and Ethics at Columbia Business School, who has no ties to the Oracle study, co-created the scientific term "enclothed cognition" to describe how clothes systematically influence wearers' psychological well-being.

People's relationship with brands is "long complicated," he says, warning that seeking happiness through purchases or the "consumer treadmill" can also create debt.

Still, 78% of people surveyed in the Oracle report think brands can do more to deliver happiness to customers. And, 91% of them say they prefer brands to be funny. That number spikes among Gen Z (94%) and millennials (94%).

That coincides with 89% of business leaders who said they see opportunities to infuse humor into the customer experience.

But 95% of business leaders in the survey fear using humor in customer interactions, and 85% of those leaders think that they don't have enough data insights or tools to be humorous.

Additionally, about 55% of those leaders would be more confident using humor if they had better visibility with their customers, and 32% say they'd feel better if they had more access to technologies like artificial intelligence to gauge customer interest.

Also, 75% of those surveyed say they would follow a brand on social media if it was funny (like Wendy's Twitter account occasionally), despite only 15% of business leaders saying they would have their brand use humor on social media.

Oracle's Tarkoff said it could be a risky bet for some brands to inject humor into their customer interactions, but it could pay off. "For a brand, it takes courage for sure and it could be beneficial and competitively different," he said.

Ford defends testing after Tomlin's letter

Automaker avoids animal use, with rare exceptions

Phoebe Wall Howard

Detroit Free Press | USA TODAY NETWORK

Actress Lily Tomlin, noting her Detroit roots as a stand-up comedian, wrote Ford Motor Co. last week to say its past funding of crash test research using dead pigs is "not cool."

Tomlin sent the letter to Mary Wroten, Ford director of global sustainability and environmental, social and corporate governance, in support of the People for the Ethical Treatment of Animals. PETA first criticized the research project in October.

Tomlin

"When I heard from PETA that Ford had bankrolled a Wayne State University study using pigs in crash tests, I was deflated," Tomlin said in the letter to Ford, dated June 27. "I thought those bleak days were in the rearview mirror, and hearing that they are recurring is like suffering backlash."

The 19-page study, published in 2018 by Wayne State University in Detroit, involved biomedical and auto safety engineers who used 27 pigs to better understand potential crash impact on small children. Data was then compared with previous, similar studies to explore orthopedic trauma and safety protocols. Researchers put the pigs to death before testing began.

Tomlin said in her letter that she "recently learned" of the study and pointed out that the study's authors specifically thanked Ford for funding.

"That's not cool," Tomlin said. "I fully support PETA's demand that Ford stop equivocating and adopt a clear public policy not to fund, conduct, commission or support animal testing unless it is explicitly required by law. ... I hope to hear soon that Ford Motor Company has publicly adopted a compassionate, animal-free testing policy."

Ford wondered why this issue was being raised again, after the letter last year, and emphasized the company isn't involved in any animal testing.

"Ford's practice is not to use animals for safety testing nor to ask or provide funding to others to do so on our behalf," spokesman T.R. Reid said. "Rare exceptions would include testing that's required by law or where there isn't an acceptable alternative for critical safety research. The study at Wayne State University, which was funded nearly a decade ago and completed in 2017, was an example of the latter.

"That work, using a minimal number of swine cadavers and conducted following the university's ethics protocols, was necessarily part of developing enhanced test dummies simulating children, to make kids safer in side-impact collisions. We don't presently use animal cadavers in research or intend to in the future, and will continue to lead in developing research methods that don't rely on animal tissue of any kind."

Child-size crash test dummies have limitations, and pigs have been used to test crash effects on organs and other aspects of child-size bodies.

"(U)sing animal surrogate test data is valuable, and may lead to the development of new or improved scaling relationships," the study says. Researchers sought "appropriate size cadaveric porcine surrogates of human 3-year-old, 6-year-old, 10-year-old, and 50th percentile male age equivalence."

PETA asked Tomlin to write the letter because "she cares deeply about the use and abuse of animals in experiments," said Moira Colley, PETA spokeswoman.

The Detroit Free Press submitted questions to Tomlin about the study underwritten by Ford and her feelings about animal advocacy. PETA returned her replies by email:

- "I was horrified to hear about it from PETA in May because I abhor cruelty to animals and always thought highly of Ford."

- "I am a PETA honorary board member and have appreciated their work to stop all sorts of cruelties to animals, for a long, long time."

- "Kindness is a virtue and animals need all the kindness they can get."

Tomlin referred to use of animals in medical research as "totally unacceptable, archaic, and unresponsive to today's consumers."

Tomlin, who was born in Detroit, attended Wayne State in 1960-62. She received an honorary doctorate in fine arts in 1988.

Tomlin has won Tony, Emmy and Grammy awards for her work on Broadway, on television and in recording.

She is known by older TV viewers for her little girl character Edith Ann, and Ernestine — "one ringy dingy, two ringy dingy" — the telephone operator on the iconic "Rowan and Martin's Laugh-In" that ran 1968-73. Audiences flocked to see "9 to 5" with Tomlin, Dolly Parton and Jane Fonda in 1980. Younger fans know Tomlin as Frankie, playing opposite Fonda in "Grace and Frankie," on Netflix since 2015.

USA TODAY Money editor Randy Essex contributed to this report.

"Using a minimal number of swine cadavers ... was necessarily part of developing enhanced test dummies simulating children."

Researchers say Thai pro-democracy activist's cell phones hit by spyware

By ELAINE KURTENBACH
and ZEN SOO
The Associated Press

BANGKOK — Cybersecurity researchers reported details Monday of cases where Thai activists involved in the country's pro-democracy protests had their cell phones or other devices infected and attacked with government-sponsored spyware.

Investigators of the internet watchdog groups Citizen Lab, Thailand's Internet Law Reform Dialogue, or iLaw, and Digital Reach said at least 30 individuals — including activists, scholars and people working with civil society groups — were targeted by an unnamed government entity or entities for surveillance with Pegasus, a spyware produced by the Israeli-based cybersecurity company NSO Group.

The reports from the two groups named many of those targeted, confirming earlier reports of the surveillance, which John Scott-Railton of Citizen Lab said shows that governments are exploiting their ability to buy technologies designed to fight crime and terrorism to spy on critics and other private citizens.

"Citizen Lab believes there is a fundamental challenge for civil society," John Scott-Railton of Citizen Lab said in an online presentation at a briefing in Bangkok.

The attacks on the individuals' devices spanned from Oct. 2020 to Nov. 2021, a timing "highly relevant to specific Thai political events" since they took place over the period of time when pro-democracy protests erupted across the country.

But Scott-Railton said Citizen Lab, which exposes digital espionage campaigns and insecure software, believed there was still an active Pegasus operator in Thailand.

Those whose devices were attacked were either involved in the protests in 2020-2021, or were publicly critical of the Thai monarchy. Lawyers who defended the activists also were under such digital surveillance, the researchers said.

The Pegasus spyware is known for "zero-click exploits," which means it can be installed remotely onto a target's phone without the target having to click any links or download software.

The spyware can obtain any data on the devices, including contact lists and group chats, making it highly effective against political groups and movements, Scott-Railton said.

NSO Group's products, including the Pegasus software, are typically licensed only to government intelligence and law enforcement agencies to investigate terrorism and serious crime, according to the company's website. Citizen Lab and other cyber security researchers have tracked the spyware to 45 countries.

Pro-democracy activist Panusaya Sithijirawattanukul shows her mobile phone during a news conference in Bangkok, Thailand, Monday. Cybersecurity researchers say that Thai activists involved in the country's pro-democracy protests had their cellphones or other devices infected and attacked with government-sponsored spyware.

In a separate report Monday, the human rights group Amnesty International reiterated its call for a global moratorium on the sale of spyware.

"The unlawful targeted surveillance of human rights defenders and civil society is a tool of repression. It is time to clamp down on this industry that continues to operate in the shadows," Amnesty Tech's deputy director Danna Ingleton said in a statement.

The company has rejected accusations that its snooping software helped lead to the killing of Saudi journalist Jamal Khashoggi, perhaps the highest-profile case so far. It maintains that its sales undergo a rigorous ethical vetting process and that Pegasus spyware is sold to governments only for security purposes.

In November, the U.S. government blacklisted NSO Group and Apple sued it and notified Pegasus victims. Facebook has sued NSO Group over the use of a somewhat similar exploit that allegedly intruded via its globally popular encrypted WhatsApp messaging app.

The reports by Citizen Lab and iLaw do not accuse any specific government actor but say the use of Pegasus indicates the presence of a government operator. When news that dissidents had been targeted first surfaced in November 2021, the government denied the allegations.

Apple said it sought a permanent injunction to ban NSO Group from using any Apple software, services or devices to "to prevent further abuse and harm to its users."

Apple's notifications to customers of spyware infections are a crucial part of a defense strategy against such digital surveillance, Scott-Railton said.

"Apple did something remarkable by notifying the recipients of this suspected targeting. If you look at the infection online, it stopped after Apple's notification," he said. "It was a very consequential thing."

The cybersecurity experts said that turning off and restarting a device can break the spyware's digital connection. Security updates also have helped to close the loopholes such as attackers exploit.

"Layering up defenses on devices is very important," Scott-Railton said. "Anything is better than nothing."

But the spyware is constantly being updated and it is designed to be difficult to spot, facilitating surveillance by governments that have found it a useful tool for suppressing dissent.

Thailand's student-led pro-democracy movement ramped up activities in 2020, largely in reaction to the continuing influence of the military in government and hyper-royalist sentiment.

The movement was able to attract crowds of as many as 20,000-30,000 people in Bangkok in 2020 and had followings in major cities and universities.

"There is longstanding evidence showing Pegasus presence in Thailand, indicating that the government would likely have had access to Pegasus during the period in question," researchers said in the report. The over 30 individuals targeted were also "of intense interest to the Thai government."

The army in 2014 overthrew an elected government, and Prayuth Chan-ocha, the coup leader, was named prime minister after a 2019 general election put in power a military-backed political party.

Pressure on Senate GOP after same-sex marriage passes House

By LISA MASCARO
The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The Senate unexpectedly launched a new push Wednesday to protect same-sex marriage in federal law after a surprising number of Republicans helped pass landmark legislation in the House. Some GOP senators are already signaling support.

The legislation started as an election-season political effort to confront the new Supreme Court majority after the court overturned abortion access in Roe v. Wade, raising concerns that other rights were at risk. But suddenly it has a shot at becoming law. Pressure is mounting on Republicans to drop their longstanding opposition and join in a bipartisan moment for gay rights.

“This legislation was so important,” Senate Majority Leader Chuck Schumer said as he opened the chamber Wednesday.

The Democratic leader marveled over the House’s 267-157 tally, with 47 Republicans — almost one-fifth of the GOP lawmakers — voting for the bill late Tuesday.

“I want to bring this bill to the floor,” Schumer said, “and we’re working to get the necessary Senate Republican support to ensure it would pass.”

Political odds are still long for the legislation, the Respect for Marriage Act, which would enshrine same-sex and interracial marriages as protected under federal law. Conservatives, including House GOP leaders, largely opposed the bill, and the vast majority of Republicans voted against it.

But in a sign of shifting political attitudes and a need for an election-year win, some Republicans are signaling there may be an opening. Few Republicans spoke directly against gay marriage during Tuesday’s floor debate in the House. And Senate Republican leader Mitch McConnell was notably silent when asked about the bill, saying he would take a look if it comes to the Senate.

“I’m going to delay announcing anything on that issue,” McConnell said, adding he would wait to see if

Senate Majority Leader Chuck Schumer, D-N.Y., speaks with reporters following a closed-door caucus lunch, at the Capitol in Washington, Tuesday.

Schumer brings it forward.

President Joe Biden wants Congress to send him the bill to sign as soon as possible.

“This is something that’s personal to the president,” White House press secretary Karine Jean-Pierre told reporters traveling with the president.

Biden is “a proud champion of the right for people to marry whom they love and is grateful to see bipartisan support for that right,” she said. “He believes it is non-negotiable and that the Senate should act swiftly to get this to the president’s desk. He wants to sign it, so we need this legislation and we urge Congress to move as quickly as possible.”

So far, the legislation has just two Senate Republican co-sponsors, Susan Collins of Maine and Rob Portman of Ohio. Lisa Murkowski of Alaska and Thom Tillis of North Carolina are among others closely watched for possible support.

In all 10 Republican senators would need to join with all Democrats to reach the 60 vote threshold to overcome a GOP filibuster.

“We’re seeing progress on this, and I’ll take progress,” Sen. Tammy Baldwin, D-Wis., the bill’s chief sponsor, told reporters at the Capitol.

The No. 2 Republican, Sen. John Thune of South Dakota, was doubtful Tuesday, calling the proposed legislation little more than a political message.

Social issues including same-sex marriage and abortion have sprinted to the top of the congressional agenda this summer in reaction to the Supreme Court’s action overturning Roe v. Wade, a stunning ruling that ended the nearly 50-year-old constitutional right to abortion access. It set off alarms that other rights conservatives have targeted could be next.

While Justice Samuel Alito, writing for the majority, insisted the Roe v. Wade ruling pertained only to abortion access, it demonstrated the new conservative muscle with three Trump-era justices tipping the court’s balance. A concurring opinion by Justice Clarence Thomas, who has gained stature in the new majority, raised questions about gay marriage and other rights.

“We take Justice Thomas — and the extremist movement behind him — at their word,” said Speaker Nancy Pelosi during the House debate. “This is what they intend to do.”

Big Arizona provider won't resume abortions despite ruling

PHOENIX (AP) — The leader of Arizona's largest abortion provider said Tuesday her organization will not resume the procedures in one county even though a federal judge has blocked a fetal 'personhood' law they feared could lead to criminal charges against doctors and others.

Brittany Fonteno, president and CEO of Planned Parenthood Arizona, blamed "vague and confusing" statements from Republican Attorney General Mark Brnovich about a near-total pre-statehood ban on abortions for the decision.

That law has been on the books since at least 1901 but has been blocked since shortly after the U.S. Supreme Court's 1973 decision in Roe v. Wade. That injunction covers Pima County, home to Tucson, and the attorney general, so the judge's decision on the personhood law left open the possibility they would resume in Tucson.

The high court overturned Roe last month, saying women do not have a constitutional right to abortion, allowing states to limit or even ban all abortions.

Brnovich announced last month the pre-1901 law was enforceable and that his office would seek to have that injunction lifted, although it has not yet done so.

"We are not going to put our patients, staff and communities at risk especially when a majority of our frontline providers and patients identify as POC, LGBTQ or immigrants and we know that the criminal justice system is particularly cruel to those communities," Fonteno said in a statement.

The medical director of the second large abortion provider in Tucson did not immediately return calls seeking comment. Choices Women's Center, like other Arizona providers, stopped abortion care after the Supreme Court's June 24 ruling.

The other major issue worrying providers was a 2021 law that grants all legal rights to pre-born children, a so-called "personhood" law that grants all rights to pre-born children. Providers worried

Associated Press

Thousands of protesters march around the Arizona Capitol after the Supreme Court decision to overturn the landmark Roe v. Wade abortion decision, June 24, 2022, in Phoenix. The Supreme Court on Friday stripped away women's constitutional protections for abortion, a fundamental and deeply personal change for Americans' lives after nearly a half-century under Roe v. Wade. The court's overturning of the landmark court ruling is likely to lead to abortion bans in roughly half the states.

that the state could bring criminal charges against doctors and others for otherwise legal abortions, and asked a federal judge last month to block it as unconstitutionally vague.

U.S. District Judge Douglas Rayes did just that on Monday, saying a written ruling that the groups that sued to block the law are right — it is "anyone's guess," as the state acknowledged, what criminal laws abortion providers may be breaking if they perform otherwise-legal abortions.

At least four other states have similar "personhood" laws on the books, including Missouri, Georgia, Alabama and Kansas, although the Kansas Supreme Court declared in 2019 that access to abortion is a fundamental right under the state's Bill of Rights and its "personhood" law has no effect.

Rayes had refused to block Arizona's personhood law last year, but abortion rights groups renewed their request after Roe

v. Wade was struck down.

They argued that providers fear they could be charged with child abuse, assault or a litany of other crimes, and that the law was too vague. There is also concern of civil and regulatory action.

The attorney general's office told the judge that the personhood law created no new criminal laws, but admitted in their court filings that prosecutors and courts could have a different view.

Abortion rights groups that challenged the personhood law hailed the ruling, while a spokesperson for Brnovich said it was based on an interpretation of the law it disagreed with and was considering what to do next.

The "personhood" law says all other state laws should be interpreted to bestow all rights to an unborn child. Rayes' ruling blocks enforcement of the law while the challenges precede though the court, including a possible trial.

"Medical providers should not have to guess about whether the otherwise lawful performance of their jobs could lead to criminal, civil, or professional liability solely based on how literally or maximalist state licensing, law enforcement, and judicial officials might construe the Interpretation Policy's command," Rayes said.

States now have wide-ranging rights to limit abortion, and many laws limiting or blocking all abortions that were previously blocked can now be enforced. That has led to battles in many states over which laws are now enforceable.

executive director of the Sunrise Movement, a group of young climate activists. "Among young people there is a deep frustration that the issue of our time that is existential to our survival is not being met with the level of fight that it deserves."

She and other organizers argued that anger over the tanked environmental legislation would only push young voters to double down on their commitment to elect progressive Democrats.

"I think they see there is no room to remake the Republican Party, but there is room in states to remake the Democratic Party," said Cristina Tzintzún Ramirez, president of NextGen America, a progressive political action committee founded by billionaire Tom Steyer to mobilize young voters.

NextGen has earmarked $1.5 million to mobilize students on 186 college campuses in the battlegrounds of Arizona, Michigan, North Carolina, New Hampshire, Nevada, Pennsylvania, Texas and Wisconsin. It is aiming to reach 9.6 million progressive voters.

The Sunrise Movement is planning to focus on swing states such as Pennsylvania and on competitive House races. The nonpartisan Environmental Voter Project is targeting 8 million people it has identified as environmentalists who did not vote in the 2020 presidential election.

Although Democrats blamed Manchin, there was little sign that Republicans felt political pressure to move toward action on climate — and certainly none of the moderate voter outcry that recently prompted a rare bipartisan compromise on gun laws.

calized effects of climate change with calls for action — Rep. Kevin McCarthy of California, the Republican leader, on Friday pleaded for passage of legislation to save the giant sequoias in his district, which are threatened by fire and drought — but those calls don't cite the underlying cause, a warming planet.

Benjamin Backer, president of the American Conservation Coalition, a right-of-center environmental organization, said Republicans had no incentive to come to the table. Their own voters aren't demanding action, and liberal activists, drifting leftward, are unlikely to be satisfied with compromises Republicans could accept.

"The problem with the environment movement right now is it's so one-sided, if anyone votes the right way, it's deemed not good enough, and if a Republican votes that way, the voters who care won't vote for him anyway."

Backer and other Republicans involved in the issue insist there is movement on their side. Outright denial of climate change is almost gone, at least among elected Republicans. Many in the GOP had moved to arguing that rising temperatures were simply natural.

Now, after members of Congress took bipartisan fact-finding trips over recent years to watch Greenland melt and Alaska's permafrost burn, the predominant argument has shifted again: Tough action by the United States is pointless, many say, because carbon pollution from India and China will swamp it.

Still, House Republicans have offered incremental proposals to answer more sweeping Democratic offerings — such as investments in American renewable-energy manufacturers and forest and wetland restorations. They may suddenly seem more acceptable in the face of the Democrats' failures, Backer said.

Rep. Nancy Mace, R-S.C., who is from the coastal part of the state, believes that for both parties, climate change is a generational issue — younger voters and politicians want action; older people don't.

But how any action can be bipartisan remains unclear. Mace said the Democrats' approach of offering tax breaks for the purchase of electric vehicles or clean energy was "picking winners and losers." She said Republicans wanted broad tax cuts that would give people more money to make such investments if they chose to do so.

Democrats tried Friday to stay upbeat. Manchin, speaking on a West Virginia radio broadcast, said that if Democratic leaders were willing to wait until September, perhaps something could be worked out.

Democrats say they still have time to energize their voters before November.

And New Jersey Gov. Phil Murphy, a Democrat and the new chair of the National Governors Association, said "there's too much at stake here" to give up.

"Whether it's prescription drugs, whether it's climate, whether it's other stuff that Democrats historically have rallied around and stood for, I think party unity matters a lot right now, and so I would just hope that we could all come together," he said.

Man picked up for stealing now facing drug charges as well

by Ausage Fausia
Samoa News Reporter

A man with an outstanding warrant for stealing is now charged with unlawful possession of illegal drugs after police discovered them in his possession.

Lumana'i Faaloma made his initial appearance in court last month. The government has filed two separate cases against Faaloma.

In the first case, Faaloma is charged with stealing, a class C felony, punishable by imprisonment for up to seven years, a $5,000 fine, or pursuant to A.S.C.A 46.2101, a fine equal to twice the amount of gain from the commission of said crime, up to a maximum of $20,000, or both such fine and imprisonment.

Bail in this case is set at $5,000.

In the second case, Faaloma is charged with one count of unlawful possession of a controlled substance, to wit; methamphetamine (meth), a felony punishable by a term of imprisonment of not less than five or more than ten years and a fine of not less than $5,000 nor more than $20,000, or both.

Bail in this case is also set at $5,000.

THE UNLAWFUL POSSESSION CASE

On June 10, 2022, several police officers conducting a routine patrol on the public highway of Nu'uuli village spotted Lumana'i Faaloma, who had an outstanding warrant on him, driving a vehicle. They followed him to the parking lot of a store, where he was approached and informed of the outstanding warrant in his name.

Faaloma then attempted to turn his vehicle back on, but officers grabbed his hand and stopped him from starting the vehicle. However, he continued to resist, and after several moments of scuffling with Faaloma, the officers were able to pull him out of the vehicle and place handcuffs on him.

He was then transported to the Tafuna Police Substation (TPS).

It was during transportation to TPS that Faaloma told an officer that he had a straw containing meth on him.

When the police unit arrive at the TPS parking lot, Faaloma asked the police officer again to help him by getting rid of the straw containing meth and he would return the favor if he's released.

Again, the officer told Faaloma to wait until they got inside TPS and then he would get a chance to say whatever he wanted to say to the investigators.

Upon arrival at the TPS, Faaloma was presented with copies of the outstanding warrant in his name. Faaloma was then informed that they needed to conduct an inventory search on the rental vehicle he was driving and Faaloma agreed.

The inventory search discovered three straws and a glass pipe, all contained a white crystalline substance.

The matter was then transferred to the DPS Vice and Narcotics Unit (VNU) for further investigation.

When questioned by investigators from the VNU, after he was Mirandized, Faaloma stated that he understood his rights and he wished to make a verbal statement to investigators. He explained to investigators that the reason he was hiding from law enforcement was because he's doing illegal stuff, such as drugs.

He stated that the drugs discovered in the rental car did not belong to him, but to his cousin who rented the car two days prior to the arrest. He said he borrowed the rental car from his cousin because his wife and children were using the family vehicle for shopping.

However, he was shocked when he got inside the vehicle and discovered the three straws containing white crystalline substance. Out of carelessness, Faaloma said he then picked up the straws and put them under the passenger's seat.

When asked about his cousin's identification, Faaloma did not reply.

Faaloma was then transported to the Territorial Correctional Facility (TCF) where he was booked and confined.

THE STEALING CASE FROM 2020

On Dec. 23, 2019, the manager of a store in Tafuna called the TPS regarding an item stolen from the store. Several police officers responded to the call to investigate the matter and were told by the store manager along with several employees that the stolen item was a Galaxy Note 3X phone, and the male, who stole the phone was later identified as Lumana'i Faaloma, the defendant in this matter.

Security footage was checked and it confirmed that Faaloma left the store with the phone in his possession. When asked by officers how he came to identify Faaloma, the employee who gave Faaloma the phone told officers that they are both from Tafuna.

It was five days later that Faaloma was arrested and was taken into the TPS for questioning in a drug case. While questioning Faaloma, a police sergeant recalled the matter of the stolen phone from the store.

Faaloma was asked about the cell phone alleged to have been stolen five days previously, and he stated that on Dec. 28, he went back to the store to return the cellphone and paid $100 and the matter was settled with the owner.

Investigators contacted the store's manager and the manager told investigators that Faaloma had shown up at the store the next day but she stopped him from entering the store until he brought back the phone, and according to the manager he has not returned the phone and she has not seen him since.

The driver of a pick-up truck later identified as Malaki Tanuvasa was pulled over by police officers last month for failure to stop at a stop sign is now charged with violating local drug laws. The pick-up almost collided with another vehicle.

When he was stopped, officers smelled a strong odor of alcohol coming from the driver's breath and asked him if he was under the influence of alcohol, to which he replied, "No."

Officers asked the driver again if he's sure that he's not under the influence of alcohol, the driver paused for few seconds before he replied, "Yes, I consumed a few beers at my friend's house and I also got some illegal stuff on me."

Officers asked the driver what stuff he was referring to, the driver replied that he got illegal meth that his friend gave to him for his own personal use. Officers then instructed the driver to step out of his vehicle.

It was at that time the driver pulled out two small baggies containing a white substance and handed them over to police officers. He also pulled from his left pocket one hand rolled marijuana cigarette and handed it over to the officers. A pat down was conducted and nothing else was found.

Tanuvasa was transported to the TPS for further investigation, and his vehicle was also impounded.

“Two major factors played into the four-fold jump in bookings this June compared to June year ago,” said HANMI chair Ivan Quichocho. “The first was 54 direct flights during the month from South Korea. This compares to zero direct flights from South Korea last June before the Tourism Resumption Investment Plan was launched by the government and tourism partners. The second factor was the large number of bookings made during the Pacific Mini Games.”

Quichocho, who is also chairman of TRIP and a member of the Marianas Visitors Authority board of directors, urged for continued support of the tourism office’s work in the coming year.

“During the Pacific Mini Games, we saw Saipan’s largest hotel—Grandvrio Resort Saipan—open up temporarily to accommodate the demand for rooms. However, in order to bring in enough visitors to keep Grandvrio, other hotels, and other tourism businesses operating, we need to ensure the MVA receives significant funding in the new fiscal year to continue its marketing and promotions, especially to grow demand from Japan, which will restart direct flights to Saipan on Sept. 1, 2022. The success of TRIP Korea can be repeated, but the MVA must be supported in order to achieve that. We still have a long ways to go to recover the economy.”

Harris vows US will strengthen its Pacific islands relationships

SUVA, Fiji (AP)—U.S. Vice President Kamala Harris assured Pacific island leaders of more U.S. engagement after acknowledging Wednesday the United States may not have previously provided the diplomatic attention the region deserved.

Harris’ virtual address to the Pacific Islands Forum, meeting in the Fijian capital Suva, comes as China vies for more influence in the Indo-Pacific region.

She proposed new embassies in Tonga and in Kiribati, a Micronesian state that split this week from the 18-nation forum in a major blow to regional harmony.

Harris also proposed requesting that the U.S. Congress triple funding for fisheries assistance to $60 million a year and appoint the first U.S. envoy to the forum.

“The United States is a proud Pacific nation and has an enduring commitment to the Pacific islands which is why President Joe Biden and I seek to strengthen our partnership with you,” Harris said.

“We recognize that in recent years the Pacific islands may not have received the diplomatic attention and support that you deserve. So today I am here to tell you directly, we are going to change that,” she added.

Harris’ commitment was welcomed by Fijian Prime Minister Frank Bainimarama, the forum chair who invited her to speak.

Her invitation was remarkable given that the forum’s dialogue partners — including the United States, China, Britain and France — have not been invited to this year’s summit.

“I think it is clear to see that the U.S. is certainly looking a lot more like the Pacific partner we have traditionally held it to be,” Bainimarama said.

The United States and the forum’s wealthiest nations, Australia and New Zealand, are concerned about a security pact signed this year between China and Solomon Islands.

They fear the pact could lead to a Chinese navy base being established in the South Pacific less than 2,000 kilometers (1,200 miles) from the Australian northeast coast.

HANMI was established in 1985 as a professional forum for the hospitality industry of the Marianas. HANMI also makes regular charitable donations to support non-profit organizations and tourism-related government projects. (PR)

Australian Prime Minister Anthony Albanese arrived in Suva on Wednesday and plans to hold a bilateral meeting with Solomons Prime Minister Manasseh Sogavare.

Albanese’s government was elected in May with promises of more action on climate change and an additional 525 million Australian dollars ($358 million) spent on regional aid. Climate change is the forum’s greatest security concern.

Australia also has a security pact with Solomon Islands and Australian police have been maintaining peace in the capital Honiara since violence late last year.

The new Australian government has described the China-Solomons pact as Australia’s worst policy failure in the Pacific since World War II.

Albanese acknowledged in Suva that Australia in recent years has “not paid enough attention” to the Pacific island region. “And I know that the Biden Administration has said that,” he added.

“I very much welcome the increased engagement of the United States in the region,” Albanese said, describing the support package Harris proposed as “significant.”

La gerencia de la emisora Salsoul, al unirse a la tristeza que embarga a la familia del cantante Héctor Tricoche, ante su sorpresivo fallecimiento el pasado domingo y en vista de que el intérprete era uno de los artistas confirmados para la celebración de la sexta edición del "Aniversario de la Salsa", dio a conocer que el evento se le dedicará de manera póstuma. "Nos unimos a la pena que embarga a su familia, en especial a sus hijas Sandra, Glenda, Victoria y Patricia. Con mucho respeto realizaremos este homenaje porque la música y el legado de Héctor vivirán por siempre".

Entre los cantantes y orquestas que dirán presente en el evento se encuentran: La India; el Grupo Galé de Colombia; David Kala de República Dominicana; Charlie Aponte y su orquesta; Lalo Rodríguez; David Pabón; Luisito Carrión; Maelo Ruiz; Nino Segarra; Tito Allen; Giro; Primi Cruz; Pedro Brull; Pedro Arroyo; Pedro Conga; LimiT -21; Osvaldo Román; y Edgar Daniel.

Retired Houston Fire Captain Russell Harris poses for a photograph inside his workshop at his home June 22, 2022, in East Bernard, Texas.

Public pension funds risk a lot with cryptocurrency

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — When the Houston Firefighters Relief and Retirement Fund bought $25 million in cryptocurrencies, with the fund's chief investment officer touting their potential, retired fire Capt. Russell Harris was concerned.

Harris, 62, has attended the funerals of 34 firefighters killed in the line of duty. He was already worried about his pension after an overhaul by state and city officials cut payments as they grappled with the ability to pay out benefits. He didn't see crypto, unproven in his eyes, as an answer.

"I don't like it," Harris said. "There's too many pyramid schemes that everybody gets wrapped up in. That's the way I see this cryptocurrency at this time. ... There might be a place for it, but it's still new and nobody understands it."

The plunge in prices for Bitcoin and other cryptocurrencies in recent weeks provides a cautionary tale for the handful of public pension funds that have dipped their toes in the crypto pool over the past few years.

Most have done it indirectly through stocks or investment funds that serve as proxies for the larger crypto market. A lack of transparency makes it difficult to tell whether they've made or lost money, let alone how much, and for the most part fund officials won't say.

But the recent crypto meltdown has prompted a larger question: For pension funds that ensure teachers, firefighters, police and other public workers receive guaranteed benefits in retirement after public service, is any amount of crypto investment too risky?

Regarding the action:
Remy McCarthy, et al. v. Toyota Motor Corp., et al., No. 8:18-CV-00201-JLS-KES (C.D. Cal.)

Dear Settlement Administrator,
As a class member (id. [REDACTED]) of the case mentioned above, I am writing to object the proposed Settlement. This is the first class action I object to.

Between 2014-2021, I owned a Prius Toyota 2011 (VIN [REDACTED]).
I no longer own the car, specifically because, twice, it stalled to a stop out of the blue. I find that to be a huge life risk.

The stalling, due to malfunction of the IPM, the vehicle did not enter into a failsafe driving mode as the intended response to certain hybrid system faults.

Three of the four benefits for the case below do not serve me at all:

1. Customer confidence program -
2. Cost-free loaner and/or towing blog
3. Reimbursement
4. Possible redistribution check

I would like to have money returned to me for:

- the risk of driving a car that can stop out of the blue -this happened twice while driving.
- aggravation and towing I experienced
- getting rid of the Prius because of its unsafe status
- the unplanned cost of buying a new car.

Versus receiving services for a car I don't own anymore.

I will not appear at the Final Approval Hearing either individually or through a lawyer; and no lawyers or others will offer testimony on my behalf. I nor any lawyers on my behalf have objected to a Class Action Settlement within the past five years.

Sincerely,

Maria [REDACTED]

Subject: My objection to the proposed settlement action (Remy McCarthy, et al., v. Toyota Motor Corp., et al., No.8:18-CV-00201-JLS-KES (C.D. Cal.))

I, Warren [REDACTED] Clarksville, Va. 23927, phone [REDACTED], email: [REDACTED], am the owner of a 2016 Prius V, vin no. [REDACTED]. I have received your notice of inclusion in the subject class action settlement.

I object to this settlement for the following reasons:

1. There appears to be no improvement in the reliability of the hybrid system. We have been sold a defective inverter and Toyota is apparently providing another defective part to replace it. There is no evidence provided that the new part will be improved over the original part. Additionally, it is not clear if multiple failures (if the replacement fails) will be covered.

2. In my previous correspondence with Toyota, (copy of letter of 24 December 2020 attached) I requested they factually explain the "fail safe driving mode". They provided no explanation in writing. In a subsequent phone call from a Toyota representative, it was stated that the maximum fail safe driving mode speed would be 35 miles per hour for an unknown (short) distance. I explained that such a failure on an Interstate highway would place drivers at a significant risk to life and limb. The verbal explanation provided by the Toyota representative is in conflict with the documentation provided in this settlement (fail safe driving mode approximately 60 mph). I believe Toyota should provide in writing the details of the "fail safe driving mode" and make it known to all class action members. It could potentially be significant to the lives of those participating in this settlement.

3. The settlement is lacking in that there is no allowance by Toyota in this settlement for potential housing expenses during the replacement of the failed unit. Imagine a weekend failure in a remote area away from home and either the Toyota Dealer is closed or does not stock the parts for the repair. The suggested 4 hour limit for repair could extend to many days.

4. The proposed settlement allows the fox to guard the hen house.

Let me explain. I recently, 29 July 2022, experienced a "Hybrid System Cooling Component Needs Servicing. See a Toyota Service Dealer" warning message my Prius V dashboard. I took it to the Danville Toyota Dealer for a check of the issue. They stated they could find no fault codes in the computer (copy of service report attached). I had to demand a copy of the report as it was not provided with the $105 bill for this service.

Toyota does not allow customers to witness the work performed on the vehicles when brought to their dealers. The settlement allows Toyota Dealers to determine whether a failure is a result of a "Thermal Event". Just as with the service you see reported herein, there is no means of verification of whether a "DTC has been triggered". The settlement allows the fox to guard the hen house.

Objection submitted herewith (with attachments), Respectfully,

[REDACTED]

To: Toyota Motor Sales, U.S.A. Inc.

I am writing you in response to your letter (undated) which I received yesterday concerning the voluntary Customer Support Program Notification which you have initiated for my Prius V, [REDACTED]. I quote from your letter "Toyota has received some reports where the Intelligent Power Module (IPM) located inside the inverter assembly of the hybrid system may fail." Further it is stated that if it does fail the vehicle will enter fail safe driving mode and if the condition is verified, an appropriate remedy will be performed under the terms of this Customer Support Program. Coverage under this program is "15 years from the date of first use (DOFU) with no mileage limitation.

I am very concerned at your approach to the known potential failure of the IPM. I would like to know the data behind "some" reports where the failure has occurred. Please provide this data.

I could not readily find the definition of the "fail safe driving mode" in my owner's manual. Would you please explain what will happen in this mode.

In a non- Covid 19 world, we take very long trips with this vehicle. As stated in your letter the repair, if the failure was to happen, could take 3 hours or longer depending on a dealer's work schedule. Imagine if we are on a very long trip in the middle of somewhere where this unknown dealer's repair shop is closed for the weekend. Are you going to assume responsibility for towing, results of our potential lost business or visit, and the motel room necessary to have this repair accomplished?

I am very concerned in your remedy for this known potential problem. Please send the above requested data along with a price quote to have a more reliable IPM installed.

Automobile companies have a somewhat questionable records. I am old enough to remember one manufacture's cost analysis which predicted the cost of law suites resulting from known potential gas tank fires was less than correcting the poor design. The decision based on this decision cost lives.

While this potential IPM failure doesn't seem to fit this pattern it raises serious questions.

Respectfully,

[REDACTED]
